President 2010/2011

First things first. We made it! We earned a Diamond award this year. Congratulations everyone - job well done. I'm especially ecstatic - I mean the Central Division's Achievement Award' Chair's club is very proud (that would be me!).

This is the first time in my 3 1/2 year as chair person. Hooray!
Now, we need to work because 2012 is not far away. What we have to do is get out and register Republicans. Our club really falls down in this area. Not one person contacted me about registering voters after a calendar of events appeared in last month's newsletter. Does anyone read our newsletter? All this takes is a few hours sitting at an event in our area - week-ends are usually when this happens. So, let's get busy. This is really easy, but one person cannot do it alone.....and the Mid State Fair is approaching. Our day to work is Friday, July 22nd. Sign up sheet will be at the June meeting. If you have a preference, contact me before the meeting, and I'll get you on the list.

Again.....Hooray and Congratulations for our Diamond Award.
Suzy

“Women of EBRWF”

BERTHA TYLER , LIFE TIME MEMBER of “EBRWF.” Bertha was born in Arizona to immigrant parents. She moved to CA. with her husband Elid Alcorn, settling In Morro Bay, where they opened a restaurant. The restaurant , “Chat and Chew” was located on MB’s Main Street at number 911. After the death of husband Elid Bertha married Dean Tyler, who like many of the locals was a regular patron of the restaurant. Dean owned the Morro Bay Aquarium, which celebrated its 50th year in 2010!!! After their marriage Bertha and Dean devoted their time to operating both the “Chat and Chew and the Aquarium. After a few years they decided to sell the restaurant and devote their time and finances to the Aquarium. This is a great place to take our visitors, especially the young one’s, one spot they don’t forget. Bertha takes Thursdays off so she can attend our meetings. She is always ready to help with her time and financially. Bertha ‘s lifetime membership goes back to the early 60’s and she and Dean share the platform and belief of the Republican Party. They have a wonderful grand son John Alcorn, who works with them, and they hope one day he will be the new Republican Proprietor of the “Morro Bay Aquarium” at 595 Embaracadero, MB.

Box Tops for Education have helped America's schools earn over $200 million dollars since 1996. Earn cash for our school every time you shop for groceries. Whole world pays if US doesn't lead

By VICTOR DAVIS HANSON

Is America's preeminent world role over? That's what a recent New Yorker essay, based on interviews with presidential advisers, claimed. It characterized the Obama foreign-relations style as "leading from behind" -- given the supposed inevitable US decline and growing unpopularity. But if America abrogates its preeminent leadership position of the last 65 years, wouldn't the world look a lot like it did in the pre-American days of the 1930s? Then, a Depression-era United States was just one of many powers and reluctant to assert leadership abroad. Eighty years ago, a newly Westernized and anti-democratic Japanese powerhouse was carving out uncontested Asian spheres of influence. An oil-, rubber- and iron-hungry imperial Japan claimed it needed more natural resources to fuel its industrial revolution, and so spread an authoritarian Asian co-prosperity sphere of influence as an alternative to alliance with an economically depressed and psychologically withdrawn America. Most Americans then were tired of overseas commitments. They felt that their Considerable sacrifices in World War I either had gone unappreciated or had solved little -- not unlike the way we are becoming exhausted by Afghanistan, Iraq and now Libya.

A newly confident, united and ascendant Germany nursed a long list of financial grievances over feeling used and abused. Sound familiar? A weak Britain and France had almost no confidence in their own declining militaries -- sort of like the sad spectacle of their impotence in Libya that we have witnessed over the last two months.

Much-vaunted international institutions, like the bankrupt League of Nations, were about as effective in the role of world watchdogs as the corrupt United Nations is today.

The so-called international community cared as much in the 1930s about rising, aggressive totalitarian states in Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia as it does today about ascendant China or Iran. Millions of Jews, then as now, heard crazy threats of their annihilation, and desperately -- and in vain -- looked to the protection of the United States.

In other words, the post-American world could look a lot like the rather terrifying pre-American version of seven decades past. Why in the world would we wish to return to it?

The declinists insist we have no choice. Globalization has spread power. America has depleted its resources, both natural and financial. And our prior leadership abroad is something worthy of apology rather than pride anyway. Think of receding postcolonial Britain around 1946 as our model, not the confident, rising postwar United States.

But decline is always a choice, not an inevitable fate. America's known fossil-fuel reserves (oil, natural gas, coal, shale, tar-sands) are larger than ever. The problem is marshaling the will to use the vast new sources of energy we've recently discovered.

Our military is not just larger than the alternatives, but vastly larger and ever more lethal. Given the enormous size and productivity of the US economy, we have the means -- if not yet the will -- to rapidly pay down our huge debt. In a world short on food, America is the world's greatest agricultural producer. Other industrialized populations age and decline; ours is still growing. America is widely criticized abroad even as it remains by far the favored destination of global immigrants. While riots, strikes or revolutions sweep southern Europe and the Middle East, the United States remains stable and quiet -- despite far greater racial, ethnic and religious diversity. Globalization is still mostly a phenomenon of American innovation and originality to be licensed and outsourced abroad. There have been plenty of thugs who threatened their neighbors over the last 30 years. Saddam Hussein, Slobodan Milosevic, Manuel Noriega and the Taliban were all deposed from rule only by American power. The "lost" war in Iraq resulted in a democratic and, for now, still viable government in place of genocide. Afghanistan is depressing, but the medieval Taliban still have remained out of power for nearly a decade. In short, the old pre-American world was as unstable and dangerous as would be a new post-American update. But both retrenchments were choices that an unsure and depressed United States made -- not symptoms, then or now, of inherent weakness or inevitable decline.
